STATEMENT ON MULTI-INSTITUTIONAL RESPONSES TO THE ONGOING DEMONSTRATIONS

Over the past month, the country has witnessed nationwide protests which have threatened the national fabric and ability of the state to function optimally. The protests which were initially triggered by objections concerning the Finance Bill 2024, have evolved into pervasive legitimacy questions relating systemic governance issues and accountability.

The protests have particularly exposed the vulnerability of state institutions which have the primary mandate to protect constitutional freedoms. What we have witnessed in the past few weeks require considered response.

As the law society of Kenya we hold the view that norms of sovereignty of the people and constitutional supremacy are not in conflict. We believe that the Constitution has adequate guarantees for the full exercise of rights and freedoms, and maintenance of our justice system.

In accordance with their rights under Article 55(b) of the Constitution, the youth have stood up to be counted in the social, economic and political issues affecting the country. In so far as the youth have largely been peaceful in their agitation for progressive change and improved governance, nothing precludes their enjoyment of their constitutional rights. However, we note with deep concern that the response by various institutions in recent days have been heavy handed and contrary to the ethos of a democratic society that respects freedom of speech and the full enjoyment of socio-political rights as enshrined in the Bill of Rights.

It is of further concern that the impunity with which repression has been meted against the young people of Kenya almost presupposes that the state has inherent authority to grant and to withdraw rights under the Bill of Rights. We wish to point out to all institutions of government that the role of the state is outlined in Article 21 as observing, respecting, protecting, promoting and fulfilling the rights and fundamental freedoms guaranteed under the Bill of Rights. We remind our institutions that Article 19 is categorical that human rights belong to the people and are not granted by the state. The unconstitutional and arbitrary derogation of rights highlighted throughout this statement will underscore a belief by some errant government entities that they have discretion over who enjoys certain rights and when, but this could not be farther from the truth.

Purported Ban of Protests within the Nairobi Central Business District by the Acting Inspector General

Through a Press Release of 17th July 2024, the Acting Inspector General has ostensibly issued an arbitrary ban on all planned demonstrations. In the statement, the Acting Inspector General purports to have the authority, and further to exercise that authority, to ban planned demonstrations within the Nairobi CBD for reasons that the demonstrations do not have a leader.
